The Managers feel the pressure on the country in common with other subscribers, and regret that their contracts, but more particularly the delinquency of a number of stockholders in paying the installments heretofore required, render the present call necessary. These delinquents who have hitherto, in part or wholly neglected the pressing calls of the Board, are now assured, that suits in a short time will be commenced against them—after which five per cent per month will be demanded, and probably specie or par paper.

Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh.

AT a special meeting of the Directors of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh, held at the Bank on Tuesday the 20th July, inst. the situation of the affairs of the institution was taken into consideration; after a dispassionate investigation of the subject, and conceiving themselves perfectly clothed with the necessary powers, from the expression of sentiment exhibited by the Stockholders at their late meeting, the following resolution was made.

WHEREAS, from the embarrassment of the times, all banking operations, even of the ablest institutions, are so seriously shackled as to deprive them of every useful feature;

AND WHEREAS, the utility of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh, has, by its unfortunate robbery in 1818, been in a particular manner destroyed, so as to render any attempt at continuance unprofitable and unpopular—Therefore,

Resolved, That the affairs of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh be wound up as soon as the nature of the case will admit.

In order that the public may have a correct conception of the value of the notes of this Bank, it is thought necessary to state, that the amount of notes in circulation does not exceed $ 9,000, while the debts due the Bank amount to 118,000 dollars, which have been loaned to the most solvent individuals in this city and its vicinity, in small sums, and which, it is confidently presumed, can be collected without difficulty and at a trifling expense.

Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 3, 1819.

No little alarm seems to be excited in Ohio, on the subject of a horde of negroes who have been liberated by the will of their late master, and directed to settle on some lands of the testator in that state. They are represented to be of the most worthless abandoned character. We know nothing of the circumstances attending this extraordinary manumission, but in charity ascribe it to a sally of that benevolent but indiscreet enthusiasm by which occasionally, so much more harm than good is done to this miserable, but important class of our population. It might, perhaps, be considered harsh to advert to the old royal method of soothing an anxious conscience by the erection of a church or a monastery, which was considered as expiating every past offence.—The responsibility is serious, indeed, which an individual assumes in thus suddenly throwing loose a body of depraved, ignorant slaves, who have been accustomed to the most rigorous constraints, and never for a moment to think or to act for themselves. The consequences of this rash and short-sighted benevolence have often been exhibited. It is a painful subject of contemplation.

We anticipate a great deal of edifying discussion on this occasion. Much may be said on both sides, and our good neighbours have enough of the Connecticut shrewdness and sagacity to be exceedingly fond of a right tough argument, like Mr. Saddleton in the Heart of Mid-Lothian. Whilst many will stand up with stoutness and impartiality for the equal unalienable rights of man guaranteed by the constitution, others, and we suspect a majority, will regard these people as a nuisance which it is lawful and expedient forthwith to abate. The question will be discussed as ably as the right to banish Napoleon. "Col. John Taylor, of Caroline," hitherto the great oracle of the south, and one of the anti-manufacturers, hints very plainly in his famous Arator, that we ought to get rid of the free blacks the best way we can but at all events we must get rid of them. "The interest of virtue, therefore, as well as sound policy, is allied with the interest of agriculture, in recommending the proposed severance. If it should not benefit every individual of the three classes as is probable, no doubt can exist of its benefitting a majority of the whole It may be easily effected by purchasing of Congress lands sufficient for their subsistence in states where slavery is not allowed, and giving them the option of removing to those lands or emigrating wherever they please (i. e. at all events quit the state.) Perhaps both the national safety and prosperity would justify a harsher measure." The Colonization Society, we believe has not yet come out so distinctly, but every one admits the fallacy of supposing that the free negroes will voluntarily leave the United States We suspect the people of Ohio will strongly favor Col. Taylor's reasoning. The majority who "feel power" are very apt to pursue peremptory high-handed measures, and seriously, if these new comers be of the alarming character represented, we do not know but that the principle which justifies a quarantine law might fairly be extended lonr enough to justify their exclusion.

By a law of this state passed in 1789, a heavy penalty is inflicted on every captain of a vessel bringing a convict from abroad into Pennsylvania. In addition to this penalty he shall become bound "to convey without the limits of the United States such convict, within such reasonable time as shall be ordered by the court," and on refusing to comply he is to be committed to gaol. In our estimation a convict would be a much less dangerous personage than one of these slaves, if the description we have had of them be correct.

TRANSLATED FROM THE ROYAL GAZETTE OF HAYTI.

Cape Henry, May 25.

On the 4th of May current, his Britannic Majesty's brig Shearwater, capt. D. Cox, entered the port of the capital from Jamaica, dispatched by his excellency sir Home Popham, admiral and commander in chief of his Britannic Majesty's naval forces, for the station of Jamaica, and its dependencies, to announce his speedy arrival in this city.

As soon as his grace the duke of Marmelade, governor of the capital, and Monsieur the Baron de Dupuy, secretary interpreter to the king for the English language, were apprised of this agreeable & flattering news, they hastened to give notice to his majesty, our well beloved sovereign, who was absent visiting the lines on the Spanish part of the island. His majesty immediately gave his orders to the governor of the capital, and the Baron de Dupuy, to dispose of every thing so as to be prepared to receive the admiral with all the regard and all the distinction due to his character, and to the friendship and respect which we feel for a friendly nation, that has always shewn us marks of its good feelings towards us. In consequence Monseigneur the governor, and Monsieur the Baron de Dupuy caused suitable preparations to be made at a hotel in the city, to receive the admiral; and ordered a guard of troops of the line to be constantly on duty waiting his arrival.

His excellency was expected with impatience for many days, by the people of this capital; for the reputation of admiral Popham had preceded him in our clime. At length, on the 16th, after 12 days of expectation, the feelings of the inhabitants of the capital were at their height, when, at one o'clock in the afternoon, his Britannic Majesty's frigate, Iphigene, of 44 guns, captain H. Parker, followed by the brig of war, Beaver, capt. King, from Havana, entered the port, having his excellency admiral sir Home Popham on board the frigate.

A royal salute was fired by the frigate, and answered from the battery of the city arsenal.

M. the Baron de Dupuy repaired on board the frigate, to compliment, in the name of the king, the admiral upon his happy arrival, and to express to him how much his majesty was flattered and gratified by his visit. M. the Baron de Dupuy invited his excellency to come on shore, where every thing was prepared & made ready, to receive him at the hotel. The admiral landed early next morning; which being done, he was shown into the carriage of the governor, which was on the king's wharf to receive him, and repaired with his retinue to the hotel destined for him.

The next day after his arrival his excellency gave audience to the board of Foreign Commerce. The merchants of the city had the honor to present their respects in a body to him, and to congratulate him upon his happy arrival.

The day following, his Grace the Governor of the Capital, accompanied by a numerous staff, the officers of the corps, civil and administrative, of the capital, repaired in grand procession to the hotel of his excellency, to compliment him and felicitate him upon the happiness which we feel, in having amongst us an English admiral, of so distinguished a character, and so high a reputatation and who has so generously shewn himself the friend of Haytians. His excellency appeared to be extremely flattered by this visit, and expressed his satisfaction to Monseigneur the Governor, with much benevolence & cordiality.

His Grace the Duke of Marmelade invited his excellency to dine with him, together with captain Parker and the other officers of the ships. On this occasion there was a splendid repast at the hotel of the governor, where gaiety the most free and the greatest cordiality reigned between the English and Haytian officers. Among the patriotic toasts suitable to the occasion, the following were drank by the guests of the two nations—'The king of Great Britain'—'The king of Hayti, may he complete gloriously what he has commenced wisely'—and 'A perpetual union between the Haytians and the English.'—After dinner his excellency retired; and in the evening he honored with his presence the ball which was given by the governor, on the occasion of his excellency's arrival.

The following day his excellency visited the Royal Academy, the National School, and the Magazines for clothes and provisions; and walked in the country with captain Parker and his officers.

Captain Parker accompanied by the admirals surgeon, Dr. Macknamara and other officers of the frigate, visited the Military Hospital of this city, to which Dr. Stewart, Surgeon to the King, & Surgeon in chief of the hospitals, repaired at the same time.

On the 21st, at 4 o'clock in the morning, his majesty, our very august and well beloved sovereign, entered this city, accompanied by his royal highness the prince royal, returning from his tour.—His majesty immediately announced his arrival to his excellency, and signified to him that he should be happy to give him an audience in his palace at ten.

The admiral went at the hour appointed, having capt. Parker in his carriage. His excellency was introduced as were the other officers, into the hall of audience by the masters of ceremonies, and presented to the king by M the Baron de Dupuy. His majesty received his excellency and his officers with much friendship, and with the greatest attention.—His majesty and his royal highness his well beloved son, remained more than four hours with his excellency, who appeared to be well pleased with the particular attention which he received from his majesty.

The king departed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon for Sans-Souci.

On the morning of the 22d his excellency went on board the frigate, which sailed early the next morning. His excellency carried with him, our good wishes and our regrets that we could not retain him a longer time!

Every kind of refreshment has been sent on board the frigate, by order of his majesty, with a readiness and pleasure, which furnish unequivocal proof how happy we shall always be to receive the visits of our true and good friends!

From the New Orleans Chronicle.

The following fact, though altogether worthy of being remembered, has never I believe, been reported by the pen of any historian.

Lest it should be thought a mere fabrication to occupy a vacant column in the newspaper, I think it not not unimportant to state, that the subject of this memoir, Mr. Hunter, is well known in Darlington district, South Carolina; and the following narrative, which I had from himself, familiar to his friends and acquaintance.

Hunter, though a youth of perhaps 18 years old, was very active in defence of his country's rights during the revolutionary war. It was the fate of this Tyro in arms to fall into the hands of Major Fanning, whose deeds as a cruel partizen leader in the service of Great Britain, are written in North and South Carolina, in characters of blood. Hunter, whose active services had roused the ire of the Major, was told upon the spot to prepare for his fate, which was nothing less than death, for which awful event a few minutes only were allowed him to prepare. A band of tories, thirsting for the blood of a patriot, instantly formed a circle round the boy, leaving him no reasonable chance of escape.

At this moment thought followed thought in quick succession. His home, his friends, his country, and the circumstances under which he was about to be torn from them all, together with the reflection that he must quickly realize a state of untried being, crowded upon his mind, and called up feelings not to be described.

For the first time he bent his knees to the power which yields the destinies of man, and no sooner had he breathed a wish to the throne of mercy, than he felt a strong persuasion that deliverance was possible. This important point settled in his mind, he cast his eyes round in search of the means to be employed. At the distance of a few paces from the encircling band stood a beautiful filly, furnished with the major's riding establishment, complete This animal, late the idol of sportsmen in Virginia, had fallen into the hands of the present owner, and was highly prized, as affording the means of escape from impending danger.

'Cannot I,' thought Hunter, 'spring from my knees, gain the saddle, and under the favor of that power which has so fully assured my heart, escape this threatening death?' Having resolved, if he must perish, to perish in the attempt, he darted like lightning through his enemies and seizing the bridle, which was held by a servant boy, as he vaulted into the saddle, he put the major's courser to her speed, and went off with his booty, to the no small disappointment and mortification of the beholders. After gazing a while in stupid amazement, the redoubtable Fanning recollected that his soldiers had guns, but it was too late; & the order to 'shoot at the rebel' was obeyed without effect.

TOPHAM, THE STRONG MAN.

In the year 1741, Topham was about thirty one years of age and in the prime of life; he kept a public house, the sign of the apple tree at that time. He lifted three hogsheads of water weighing 1836 pounds placed upon a kind of scaffold, and performed it with such ease that he desired three children to stand under them at the time, which the populace would not permit.

The feats which Dr. Desaguliers says he himself saw him perform, are as follow:

"By the strength of his fingers he rolled up a very strong and large pewter dish—he broke seven or eight short pieces of a tobacco pipe by the force of his middle finger, having laid them on his first and third finger: having thrust the bowl of a strong tobacco pipe under his garter, his legs being bent he broke it to pieces by the tendons of his hams, without altering the bending of his legs.—Another bowl of this kind he broke between his first and 2d finger, by pressing them together sideways. He lifted a table with his teeth six feet long, with half a hundred weight hanging to the end of it, holding it in a horizontal position a considerable time. He took an iron kitchen poker about a yard long and three inches round, and struck upon his bare left arm, between the elbow and the wrist, till he bent the poker nearly to a right angle. With such another poker, holding the ends of it in his hands and the middle of it against the back of his neck, he brought both ends of it together before him; and what was yet more difficult, he pulled it almost straight again. He broke a rope of two inches in circumference, though in consequence of his awkward manner, he was obliged to exert four times more strength than was necessary. He lifted a rolling stone of eight hundred pounds weight with his hands only, standing in a frame above it, and taking hold of a chain that was fastened thereto.

"Dr. Hutton of Birmingham, speaking of Topham, is right in asserting that he also kept a public house at Islington; he likewise confirms what was said of him by Dr. Desaguliers; besides his lifting two hogsheads of water, heaving his horse over the turnpike gate, carrying the beam of a house as a soldier carries his fire lock. These, Dr. Hutton observes, were the reports circulated respecting pham in the country; but however belief might be staggered, he observes, she recovered herself, when this second Sampson appeared at Derby as a performer in public, at a shilling each.—Upon application to alderman Cooper, to exhibit, the magistrate was surprised at feats he proposed; and as his appearance was like that of other men, he requested him to strip that he might examine whether he was made like them; but he was found extremely muscular. What were hollows under the arms and hams of others, were filled up with ligaments in him

"Foom the jerk he received from the two horses, Dr. Hutton observed, that he limped a little in his walk; & though a well made man, had nothing singular in his appearance.

"The performances of this wonderful man at Derby, whom the Doctor observes, had the strength of twelve men united, were the rolling up a pewter dish of seven pounds, as a man rolls up a sheet of paper; holding a pewter quart at arms length, and squeezing the side together like an egg-shell; lifting two hundred weight with his little finger, and gently moving it over his head. The bodies he touched seemed to have lost the power of gravitation. He also broke a rope fastened to the floor, that would have sustained twenty hundred weight; he lifted the oak table with half a hundred weight to it; a piece of leather being fixed to one end of his teeth to hold, and while two of the feet stood upon his knees, he raised the end of it with the weight higher than that in his mouth. Mr. Chambers, then Vicar of all Saints. at Derby, weighed twenty seven stone, he took & raised with one hand, his head being laid on one chair and his feet on another. Four people also, fourteen stone each, sat upon Topham's body and these he heaved at pleasure. At one blow he struck a round bar of iron, one inch in diameter, against his naked arm, and bent it like a bow, Weekness and feeling seemed fled together.

A method of taking the Honey without destroying the Bees.

The common practice of killing the the Bees, in order to obtain the honey, few can witness without some little compunction; and as there is a very simple method of effecting the object without any injury to this most interesting little animal, (which, on the score of interest as well as humanity, claims regard,) I beg leave to communicate it through your paper, should you deem it worthy a a place in it.

In the evening when the Bees have retired, take the hive gently from the stand, spread a table cloth on the ground; set the hive on it, placing something under to raise the hive three or four inches; then draw up the corners of the cloth, and fasten them tight around the middle of the hive, leaving it so loose below that the Bees will have sufficient room between it and the hive—then raise the lid of the hive a little, & blow in the smoke from a segar; a few puffs of which as it is very disagreeable, will drive them down: continue raising the lid gradually, blowing in the smoke all round, and in a few minutes it will be found that they have all gone out of the hive. You may then take off the lid, and cut away as much honey as you may think proper. If the operation be performed in the beginning of July, you may take nearly all, as there will be time enough to provide a sufficiency for their support during the winter. As soon as you have taken the honey, put on the lid, loosen the cloth, and spread it out, in an hour or two the bees will have returned into the hive. It may then be replaced on the stand, and on the following day they will be found at work as usual.

This method is very simple, and preferable to that sometimes practised, of driving the bees into another hive; as you get all the honey and moreover the new comb which is still empty; and the young bees, not yet out of the cells, are preserved. There is also danger in driving, of their not liking their new habitation, and, in that case, of their sallying out and making war upon their neighbours.

The above method has frequently been practised by myself and others, and we have always found it to do well.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday, August 3, 1819.

In February, 1817, it may be recollected, that the general assembly of the state of Ohio made propositions to the states of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana, that each of them should choose one commissioner, "who should meet the commissioners of the different states, at Pittsburgh, in order to proceed down the river, for the purpose of examining the obstructions in the Ohio, especially the Rapids, and noting the several impediments and the probable expense that will attend their removal, &c. &c." This proposition was acceded to by the respective states concerned, and the following gentlemen were appointed commissioners. General Blackburn from Virginia; Hon. Walter Lowrie from Pennsylvania; General Tupper from Ohio, and General Adair from Kentucky. The first of August was fixed upon as the day of meeting at Pittsburgh General Blackburn and Mr. Lowrie have arrived; the other gentlemen are hourly expected.

It is a matter of singular gratification, that the river is in the best possible state for examination; and we only have to regret that the citizens of Pittsburgh had not had the precaution to have a proper boat ready for the Commissioners, at their arrival; delay is dangerous, and although on any other occasion we should be anxious to extend the hand of hospitality to detain those gentlemen among us awhile, yet at present we confess, we are only desirous to "speed them on their way." A sudden rise would prove fatal to the enterprize for this season; and to Pittsburgh it is of vital importance to have this great work completed as soon as possible. We have the highest expectation from the judgemnt, talents, and industry of the gentlemen appointed by our sister states; as citizens of Pennsylvania we cannot check the expression of our satisfaction at the selection of Mr. Lowrie; his distinguished patriotism, sound sense, & independent mind, promise the most beneficial results from every undertaking in which he may be concerned. Each commissioner is to report the issue of this investigation to his government, at the next session of the legislature.

The Louisville editors have thought fit to display some very ill humour on the subject of an extract of a letter which we published, stating that the Yellow fever existed in that town. We really cannot discover any great cause for the exhibition of temper on the occasion; the letter containing this information was handed to us by messieurs Bonnet & Rouaud, who are indeed a most respectable and wealthy firm, notwithstanding the italics in the Louisville papers; it was written by the house of Macgill and Croxall, and as it certainly did not require any very great stretch of credulity to believe the report, we did publish it for the benefit of all whom it might concern. It cannot be presumed that it could give us any pleasure to hear that an important western town had been visited by this horrible american scourge; every being who has attended to our Journal must be convinced that we are enthusiastic in every thing relating to the west; Louisville in particular we are interested for; she contains many persons who are our relations and friends; its locality also will at a future day make her highly useful to Pittsburgh. There appears, however, to be an insinuation, that we are influenced by feelings of jealousy; preposterous absurdity! unprecedented folly! no, we are not jealous; Pittsburgh never can be rivalled in the west; her greatness is bottomed on causes that exist no where else. Not Cincinnati, Louisville and many other towns not yet begun, on the western rivers, will become important is very certain, and the sooner the better for Pittsburgh; but their prosperity will be all flowing from agriculture and commerce; that of Pittsburgh will be manufacturing, in which she fears not competition. The present miserable policy to which our government is kept chained by commercial and southern prejudice and cunning, involves us in temporary gloom; a few years will dispel the delusion, we will rise to eminence, and every portion of the west will rise with us. In the mean time we should be quite gratified if the goddess Hygidea herself would take up her residence in the low grounds of Louisville.

At the present moment of embarrassment & distress, when there is the strongest temptation for unprincipled men to practise every expedient of rogueish ingenuity, we have thought it worth while to publish a few memoranda made the other day in turning over the late edition of Purdon's Abridgement with notes.—They may be useful to some of our readers in the rapid business of active life, in emergencies where legal advice cannot be waited for. It is, indeed, lamentable to consider what a gross ignorance prevails very generally on the subject of the laws which regulate commercial dealings; nay, on which life, liberty and property depend. The volume, of which we have spoken, ought to be in the possession of every citizen.

ASSIGNMENTS.

There is an act of the 24th of March, 1818, on the subject of assignments which are so common among our embarrassed traders. By this act the assignees may be cited, at the expiration of two years from the execution of the assignment, to appear before the court of common pleas, render an account on oath, and answer such interrogatories as the court may put; and the court may compel a distribution of the estate, agreeably to the terms of the assignment.

But even within the two years, if oath be made that the assignees are in failing circumstances, that they are about to remove, or are wasting or mismanageing the estate committed to their care, or are neglecting to perform the duties of the trust thus reposed in them, the court, on being satisfied of the fact, may, in its discretion, interpose and administer redress.

If the assignment be not recorded in the office for recording of deeds, in thirty days after execution, it is void against the creditors.

NEGOCIABLE NOTES.

By act of assembly of the 27th February, 1797, it is provided, that "all notes in writing, bearing date in the city and county of Philadelphia, expressed to be for value in account, or for value received, and in the body of which the words, "without defalcation," or "without value set-off" shall be held by the indorsers discharged from any claim of defalcation or set-off by the drawer or indorsers thereof; and the indorsees shall be entitled to receive against the drawer and indorsers such sums as on the face of the said notes, or by indorsements thereon, shall appear to be due."

BONDS.

The act of 28th March, 1715, directs that assignments of bonds and specialties shall be under hand and seal, before at least, two witnesses; otherwise the assignee cannot sue in his own name. An equitable assignment may, however, be made without these formalities but the name of the original obligee must be used if suit be brought. Whatever be the form of assignment, the bond is still liable to every right of defalcation which existed among the original parties, unless the assignee, at the time of assignment, call on the maker of the bond to know whether he has any set-off. If it be not disclosed the maker of the bond is debarred from afterwards setting it up.

MORTGAGES.

By an act of 18th March, 1775, if a mortgage be not recorded within six months after execution it shall be postponed to a subsequent mortgage or deed which is recorded before it. If recorded at any time within the six months, it takes rank from the date of the instrument.

The following toast was given at a late celebration in Springfield, Tennessee.

"The Fair of Tennessee. Without their society, men would be no better than barbarians."

We consider this sentiment rather unfair, in a republic, one of whose fundamental principles is that men (and of course women) are all equal. It is particularly hard on those unlucky wights, whose lot has cast them in one of the Yankee states, too far removed from the ameliorating effects of the "Fair of Tennessee." If the position taken in this modest toast be true, & we shall not be so ungallant as to doubt it, we hope that the ladies of that gifted state will make arrangements as soon as possible, to send out missionaries, which by way of variety, they may term, emanations of beauty, for the purpose of unbarbarizing the citizens of these states who cannot make it convenient to settle in Tennessee.

A Buffalo paper of the 6th inst. says, 'we regret to learn, that the remnant of the Six Nations of Indians, residing within this state, during the last week, in full council, solemnly resolved not to encourage the introduction of the Christian religion among them. We understand that the debates on the subject were long and violent.

[This remnant of the Six Nations will not exist much longer—no nation ever decreased with more rapidity.]

THE COMET,

Which lately became visible in the northerly part of our hemisphere, is probably the same that appeared in March, 1742. The following circumstance favours the supposition. The path of the comet seen in 1742, is described as passing through the constellations of the Eagle, Lyra, Swan, and the Lynx. The comet now visible, was first seen in the constellation of the Swan by the telescope, it being then invisible to the naked eye; and is now in the constellation of the Lynx, and, must of course have passed nearly or quite the same path in the Heavens as the one above mentioned. This comet is one of the smaller size, & moves in its orbit according to the signs of the ecliptic.

AIR BALLOON.

Mr. Guille, Air Balloonist, advertises, that, on Tuesday next between the hours of 5 and 6 o'clock, P. M. he will ascend in a parachute attached to an air balloon, to the height of two thousand fathoms: that having reached that height, the balloon will explode; & that he will descend in the parachute. The exhibition will take place at the Vauxhall Gardens —the price of admission is fixed at one dollar.

WORTHY PERUSAL.

The revenue of the city of New-York from May 1818 to May 1819, was 682,819 dolls. Expenditures 671,314. Of which 163,000 were expending for opening and improving streets; 65,000 on Docks and Slips 2400 on Pumps and Wells; Almshouse, Bridewell and Penetentiary, 105,000;—Watch 59,000;—Lamps 25,00; Fire Department 11,700; Police Office 6000; County contingents 28,800. Special improvements in the city 15,700.

DAIRY SECRET.—Have ready two pans in boiling water; and on the new milk's coming to the dairy, take the hot pans out of the water, put the milk into one of them, and cover it with the other.

This will occasion, in the usual time great augmentation of the thickness and quality of the cream.

The offer of a surgeon-barber in New-York to receive Barker's note for shaving and blood letting, reminds us of a Parisian dentist, who, on the birth of the Dauphin, advertised to pull teeth gratis for a week. Bost. Cent.

It will be seen by the following advertisement that the charge for making a coat in the country is quite reasonable.

LOOK AT THIS.

☞ Owing to the hardness of the times, the scarcity of money, and the fall of all kinds of produce, it is impossible for mechanics to have steady employment at the prices they demand for their labor. For my part I am willing to fall in proportion to every thing else. The stated price for making coats at present, is from $4 50 to $5 50, which according to the times, I think extortionate. I am willing to obligate to make coats for 3 dolls. 50 in the best manner, but all extra work to be paid for. As I have been but a short time from New York, the circle of my acquaintance is not very large, but if any should wish a reference as respects my being master of my business, they can have it by calling on Davis & Cunningham or N. Thorn.

Mr. ALLEN,

On the recommendation of "a Friend of Youth," in the Herald of the 9th inst. I procured the numbers of "the Guardian, or Youth's Religious Instructor," and have perused them with the same sentiments expressed by your correspondent; and feel it both a duty and a pleasure to unite in their recommendation. As a specimen of the spirit and style of the work, which I think is its best recommendation, permit me to send you occasionlly extracts therefrom, and request you to re-publish them in your useful paper.

FOREIGN.

A Mad Cat.—A number of cats have been lately bitten by a mad dog at Fulham, and its vicinity. On Tuesday morning, one of those animals whose disorder had arrived at a pitch of the greatest ferocity, attacked Mr. Poynter, a master gardener, residing in the hamlet of Fulham, and gored him most severely; his cries having brought assistance, the cat was pursued down the street, but ran into the Crown Tavern, kept by Mr. Glover, and flew most furiously at the landlord, who was in the bar, but was fortunately beaten off by Mr. Glover several times. The infuriated animal then ran at Mr. Glover's son, a fine child, three years old, and bit it most dreadfully. The landlord instantly procured a pistol, and shot the animal dead on the spot. The persons whom it had bit, were so seriously injured, that the use of costic was found necessary, and they were also, at the suggestion of an eminent Physician, taken to the sea side to be dipped.

A very important discovery has been made by the Rev. Dr. Cartwright, so well known for his mechanical attainments, which promises to be of infinite use and application. It is no less than a method by which a man may be enabled to enter into a fair competition with the horse, in any way in which the powers of that animal can be employed, with the exception of carrying a load upon his back. The soundness of the principle has been completely ascertained by an application of it to the impelling of a four wheel carriage & drawing a plough.

The Regalia of Scotland, lately discovered in the castle of Edinburg, have become a source of considerable emolument to the keeper. These ancient emblems of sovereignty, after having been buried in an oak chest for 150 years, are now exhibited to the public, by authority, at a shilling a head!

Music.—A young musician of Plymouth, is said to have invented a curious musical instrument, which he calls the musical telegraph. By it, the laws of harmony and the elements of thorough-bass, and the study of the theoretical properties of the science, are simplified.

European Paupers!—The Dumfries. Journal, of April 20th, states—"That four vessels have sailed since our last for America with passengers. They are mostly of the lower orders of society, either connected with agriculture or laborers, and some of them Paupers, from the North of England, for whom the Overseers of the parish pay the passage!

Fashionable Extravagance.—Leghorn hats for the Ladies were selling in London for 30 guineas (about 140 dollars) at our last dates.

A letter from Irun, in Spain, dated the 12th of this month, says, that a peasant has found in a field near Vitoria, a very valuable diamond. There is every reason to believe that it belonged to Joseph Bonaparte, who lost all the riches & valuable effects which he was carrying away, in consequence of the total defeat of the French army, near that city. The value of the diamond is stated to be about 400,000 reals, (10,0000 francs.)

CURIOUS MISTAKE.

A Dublin paper says, "a person who held an official situation in Dublin, whose wife had caught the Typhus fever, had her sent to the hospital for recovery.—Having received information of her death, he brought her home to his house; and, according to the Irish fashion, had her waked for several nights; he then invited several of his relations, and conveyed her several miles into the country where she was buried. Having called at the hospital about a week afterwards, for her cloths, (whether to his sorrow or not we cannot say) he found his wife so far recovered as to be able to walk home with him. The woman he had buried in mistake, was a poor friendless pauper, who otherwise would have been buried at the expense of the parish."

Original.

For the Pittsburgh Gazette.

One of the spectators at the public examination of the young ladies of Mrs. and Miss BREVOST'S Seminary, begs Messrs. Scull & Neville to insert the following lines as a public expression of individual feeling excited upon that occasion.

Far in the wilds where human feet
Had scarce a narrow pathway worn,
Methinks I saw a grain of wheat
From distant hills by breezes borne.

It fell just where a favouring soil
Allow'd our seed some scanty room—
Where nurtur'd by the hand of toil,
Its germ expanded into bloom.

Year after year, the industrious hand
That ply'd the oxen and the plow,
Deepen'd the furrows o'er the land,
And made extensive harvests grow.

Thus, in the intellectual world,
From other regions fair and mild,
The seeds of Taste and Science hurl'd,
Were rooted in this western wild.

Under your auspices, BREVOST!
These seedlings have been fondly nurs'd,
Till on our gaze, delighted, lo!
The garden of your cares has burst.

The bard who saw the bright parterre,
Which with such grace & sweetness grew
Beneath your eye and anxious care,
Cannot withold the tribute due—

And every PLANT and FLOW'R that blooms,
With grateful feelings owes the debt,
And breathes a stream of rich perfume,
To wreath the brow of ANTOINETTE.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

Ah, who would consent through this wide world to roam,
With the canker of doubt and distrust in his breast,
If it was not that heav'n had pointed a home,
Where the pilgrim may soothe all his sorrows to rest.

Dark, dark, is the path—ever winding the way,
And thorny and cold is the ground that we tread;
But still through the darkness there glimmers a ray,
To arrest smiling hope, ere the cherub has fled.

The orbs that allure us are many and bright,
But briefly they shine, and deceitful they glare;
Like the lightning's red flash that illumines the night,
But to shew the dark tempest that rides on the air;

One only is true—'tis the bright star of love,
That lights us to virtue wherever we roam,
And brings us at last to that refuge above,
Which is love's last retreat, and is virtues blest home!

Elegant Museum of WAX-WORK.

Smith & Calloway,

RESPECTFULLY acquaint the ladies and gentlemen of Pittsburgh, that they have opened at the corner of Market street and the Diamond, a beautiful collection of WAX FIGURES, as large as life; among which the following characters are represented—

His excellency JAMES MONROE, President of the United States;

A striking likeness of Gen. GEORGE WASHINGTON, late President of the U. S.

COMMODORE DECATUR,

AND

CAPTAIN DAVID PORTER;

An interesting representation of the unfortunate

Colonel Davis,

Who fell at the battle of Tippecanoe, on the Wabash, attended by his Surgeon;

A striking representation of an Indian Warrior;

Philadelphia Beauty;

BALTIMORE BEAUTY.

A Band of Elegant

Wax-Work Musicians,

Composed of a number of boys, apparently from 12 to 14 years of age, dressed in uniform.

The mechanism of this new and extraordinary invention is so surprising, that these inanimate musicians are made to chime a number of tunes, accompanied by an elegant Organ. The music of which combination, added to the beautiful appearance of the band, is so exquisitely grand, that they never fail giving the highest satisfaction to those who witness this wonderful performance.

The Sea Serpent,

A Painting, strikingly representing this wonderful monster of the deep, as repeatedly seen of late, near the harbour of Salem.

The Museum will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening, (Sunday excepted) and will be removed from this place in a few days.

Admittance 25 Cents—Children half price.

WITHOUT DEDUCTION.

To draw THREE times a week, and 1000 numbers each day. Prizes payable without deduction, Sixty days after the drawing is completed, at the Camden Bank.

25,000 Tickets at 10 Dols.

INTERNAL NAVIGATION, the object of the above scheme, must be allowed by all, to be of the highest importance to these United States and every good citizen must feel himself deeply interested on every intimation of undertakings, having Internal Improvement in view, being set on foot, and be desirous of aiding according to his abilities, towards the promotion thereof.

Under these impressions, the Commissioners in presenting the above Scheme to a generous public, feel a confidence of general and universal support and encouragement, but more particularly from their sister States, Pennsylvania, New-York, Delaware and Maryland; who, we may safely say, have never appealed in vain to their sister state of New Jersey; but on the contrary, have been, and ever will be, generously supported by her, in the like and other improvements.

As to the Scheme, the commissioners have endeavoured to suit it to the circumstances of all The low price of tickets will preclude very few from an opportunity of securing an independence for life, or acquiring a very handsome remuneration for the trifle advanced.

The many rich prizes it contains, with the others, will all be paid without deduction at the Camden Bank, where the money received for the Tickets will be deposited immediately, for the sole use of the Lottery.

Although there are 25 Capital Stationary Prizes amounting to ☞$67,500, one for each drawing day, yet there remain afloat as many large and valuable prizes, amounting to the sum of $152,500, as are generally to be met with in a whole Scheme, and the whole payable without any deduction therefrom. And for the accommodation of the fortunate adventurers in this Lottery, who may wish to receive their money immediately, a provision will be made at the said Bank for the payment of the prizes the VERY DAY they are drawn, on allowing the customary discount, as in Philadelphia or New-York.

☞ The Lottery will be drawn in Camden, opposite the city of Philadelphia, and the Manager flatters himself that such encouragement will be given by a generous public as will enable him in the course of a very few weeks, to announce in the papers of the several states, the day the drawing will commence.

Contractors will be allowed a liberal discount.

JOSIAH HARRISON, Manager.

Josiah Brick,
John Trenchard, Jr.
Elias P. Reely, Jr. Esq.

Commissioners appointed by the Legislature

Camden, N. J. May 26, 1819.

☞ The sale of Tickets in the foregoing scheme is expected to be unusually brisk—It will therefore be the interest of adventurers to make early application, as tickets will soon be raised in price, Whole Tickets, Ten Dollars—Half Tickets, Five Dollars—Quarter Tickets, Two Dollars and fifty cents.
